RE: Love...

I really miss you... I really miss our long chats in the morning. I loved those, and can't wait until we can get back to that again (someday, crossing my fingers). I miss cooking for you. I guess I miss just hanging without it being so damned stressful. I know we'll get there, just wow... is what I have to say... wow...

We have to head to my mom's in a couple of minutes. Chris just got home. He caught me up on everything I think. I would have really liked to have just chilled out honestly, plus I have a lot to do with L&A. At least my work on other stuff has subsided for now for the most part.

We go get dinner at 5:30 with my parents, and concert is 7:30 maybe. Manhattan Transfer. They are great in concert at Christmas. I know Chris isn't thrilled with it, but he's a good guy going with me.

Take care of yourself, and call when you can. And good luck with everything you are doing in Cancun. I know you are going to be awesome, no matter what you do.

Hi there,

I don't know if we are going to get a chance to chat tonight or before you leave tomorrow morning. But, I wanted to wish you a very wonderful Christmas, and I do hope it's relaxing and includes some Xanax. J

I know things are nuts for you right now... if it weren't for you, I have no idea where we would be. You are the one figuring out and taking the brunt of all the bullshit. Thank you so much for that.

While you are in Mexico, if you need me to handle anything "corporate", let me know. I'd like to get started on my application over New Years, and hopefully have most of it done before you guys return. Palm Coast can bite my ass. I will be here though, as support for whatever you need.

I suspect today was "one of those days" for you. If there's anything I can do at all, please let me know.

Have a great Christmas, enjoy tamale making, and enjoy getting warm in Cancun.

I will miss you.

Love,
kim
