RE: Thoughts

Where are you guys now?

Just know, I have full faith in you that you will do everything in your power to do what you can.

You know, if this thing doesn't go anywhere, I would hate for our partnership to not go anywhere... we are a great mix of business minds, and we have a lot to offer. So, maybe we just let the dust settle and pick up with taking over someone else. :)

I will make you all the potstickers and hot and sour soup you want tomorrow night.

Talk to you very soon.

Hey DJ,

I feel like throwing up. Wine should go well with that tonight, don't you think?

Good luck, and drive safe.

Everyone,

I know that we all have put our hearts and minds into making this deal work and what we have accomplished is something worthy of praise and pride.

Whether or not we cross the finish line, I think it should be noted that with precious little to work with from the beginning we were able to put together a sophisticated investment package, form not 1, but 2 Corporations, Complete a thorough and in depth analysis of the company and its operations, Prepare plans and strategies for the future that would be the envy of any company and dove right in an got our hands dirty helping out Bob and Jody wherever and whenever we could with no thought or expectation of return.

I am filled with pride for each of you as friends and business partners and no matter WHAT HAPPENS from here, you can and should know that what we did individually and as a group toward this acquisition was nothing short of phenomenal, and nobody can take that away from us.

Best regards,
